District Training for Club Leaders

Below are the official training materials that must be used for officer training. You can download these materials directly from our Web site at www.members.toastmasters.org. Not available in hard copy (except item 217).

Training Programs

Trained club officers mean better club meetings, more new members, happier current members and more Distinguished Clubs. Toastmasters International has training programs available to help districts provide quality club officer training, and districts are required to use these programs. These programs include everything the presenter needs to give a great training session. The following programs are available:

Achieving Success as a Club Officer

Do your clubs' officers know how to do their jobs? Use this set of seven scripts to train club presidents, vice presidents education, vice presidents membership, vice presidents public relations, secretaries, treasurers and sergeants at arms. Each script features "how to" information that will help officers perform their roles better. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Attracting New Members to Your Club

All clubs benefit from new members. Use this script to teach club officers how to increase their club's membership. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Charting a Course for Club Success

Do your clubs know about the Distinguished Club Program? Use this script to introduce them to the program or remind them about it. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Motivating Achievement

CC, ACB, CL, ALB and DTM are meaningless acronyms to most new members. Use this script to familiarize participants with these educational achievements as well as with other awards members can earn. Members also will learn about other learning opportunities available to them in Toastmasters. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Training Club Leaders

Trained club officers result in more satisfied members, more new members, better club meetings and more Distinguished Clubs. In this step-by-step guide, learn how to plan your training program so it has maximum impact. Covers both Toastmasters Leadership Institute and traditional training formats and also offers tips for training officers who are already experienced. Can also be used to plan training for district officers.

Division and Area Governor Materials

Training Programs

Trained district officers mean better performing clubs, areas and divisions. Toastmasters International has scripted training programs available to help districts provide quality training, and districts are required to use these programs. These programs include everything the presenter needs to give a great training session. The following programs are available:

Achieve Success

What must district officers do to be successful? Use this script to acquaint area and division governors with their goals and standards using the Distinguished Area Program and the Distinguished Division Program. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Maintain Strong Clubs

Area governors must visit clubs twice each year. What happens during these visits? Use this script to teach area governors how to make effective club visits. They will learn how to direct, assist with and inspire excellent club programming and how to help clubs attract new members. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Build New Clubs

Starting new clubs can be challenging for area and division governors. Use this script to help them identify markets for new clubs and enlist sponsors and mentors to help start clubs. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Build a Successful Team

Building a good team can be challenging for district officers. Use this script to train district officers in team-building. Includes information on motivating techniques, conducting meetings and developing future leaders. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.

Conduct Quality Contests

Well-conducted speech contests are good public relations tools for members and the general public. Use this script to train officers and members in conducting speech contests. PowerPoint slides and templates for handouts are also available. Download from our Web site.
